Pendleton Anderson Co. S. C.

January 2nd 1871

Geo. W. North Esq

Sir

As a man ^{conscientious} advances in life he naturally feels a desire to square accounts with this world, and as I loaned you money more than the third of a century since, on your honour supposing you were an honest man, I rec'd the asked security nor may security propered you have had the use of that money unmolested for the time mentioned. Some persons are forgetful of moneyed obligations. Not imposing that a conscientious business Christian man desires to shirk a moral obligation I now remind you that the money which you have used for your own benefit and at the expense of myself and family is needed, and as no reasoning, time guesing or law can absolve you from paying a just debt. I think it high time for you to think of paying me what is justly due. There is also another small matter which however small I demand the return of an original letter by General J Washington loaned to you long since, which you may have forgotten -

respectfully -
